"Arithmetic Might Be Too Much for Us," Boy's Answer to Hint of Mayor.

Mayor Gaynor in receiving two hundred school children to-day suggested in an address to them that perhaps they might dispose of the subway problem The children smiled and one "kiddle speke right out and said, "Mr. Mayor, perhaps the arithmetic in the subway might be too much for us."

Reuben S. Simons, who has organised thirty-three leagues, comprising pupils who are pledged to report ordinance violations and help keep the streets clean, presented the children to the Mayor, who redelved them cordially. Each child wore a badge. The Mayor approached one youngster and asked: "What is that badge and whose pictures are on it?"
